THE ILLINOIS POLITICAL JACK POT

OPENED BY THE U. S. SENATE UTILITY OWNER WAS ANGEL

Contributed Money To Republicans and Democratic Campaigns To Carry Out His Ideas—Gave Away $237,925, Testified Samuel Insull, the Multi-Millionaire, Public Utilities Operator Before the Senate Campaign Fund Committee Monday.

Only one of the four recalcitrant witnesses in the Illinois and Pennsylvania primary election investigation availed himself Monday of the opportunity given by the senate campaign funds committee to escape prosecution for contempt.

Samuel Insull, multimillionaire public utilities operator of Chicago, who revealed additional contributions, bringing his total to $237,925, given to nearly all the factions in the Illinois contest, and his personal counsel, Daniel J. Schuyler, will have another chance next Saturday to avoid proceedings because of their refusal to answer questions.

Thomas W. Cunningham, of Philadelphia, treasurer of the Pennsylvania Republican state committee, placed himself beyond the committee pale, and either will be sentenced by the senate or prosecuted under an indictment in the District of Columbia courts.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney of Cook county, Illinois, was the one witness who made as clean a breast of his connection with the Illinois primary election as the committee demanded.

Thus he reversed the position he took at Chicago last August that he would not testify as to contributions to the Cook county campaign fund for nomination of local offices.

Insull and Schuyler went much further than they did upon their first appearance at Chicago, disclosing an additional $45,000 gift from Insull to the Cook county "jack pot" as Senator James A. Reed, Missouri, Democrat, the committee chairman, described it.

However, both persistently refused to disclose the names of the four men to whom two cash payments of $20,000 each were made. Insull explaining that if he did so he would violate a confidence, which his conscience would not permit him to do.

The utilities operator left Monday night for Chicago to obtain for the committee a check for $190,000 and other memoranda and he was advised by Chairman Reed that while away he should make every effort to have the four men to whom he gave the $40,000 release him from his pledge of secrecy.

"The committee does not want to have to go to extremities," the chairman said.

Cunningham, who appeared with his attorney, Representative Benjamin M. Golder, Pennsylvania, Republican, stood his ground against the committee, refusing to answer any questions as to the source of the $50,000 which he contributed to the campaign organization of William S. Vare, senator-elect from Pennsylvania.

"I refuse to answer," Cunningham said in response to all questions, and even to the declarations of Senator Reed that the committee directed him to answer.

As he was excused the Philadelphia political leader did explain that he was interested in the campaign of Edward Beideman for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, and that he would not have made the contribution had Beideman not been a candidate.

Crowe and Schuyler disclosed the additional $45,000 of Insull campaign distributions not hitherto revealed before the committee. Crowe said Schuyler gave to him $5,000 of Insull's money for use in the campaign of George W. Savage, a candidate for nomination as county judge.

Schuyler confirmed this contribution and told of the gift by the utilities magnate of $40,000 more "to the county ticket." He and Insull refused to say to whom this money was paid, insisting that it had no relation to the senatorial campaign.

Senator Reed disagreed on that proposition and Insull conceded that since there were slates in Cook county bearing the name of Frank L. Smith, who sought the senatorial nomination, the money necessarily benefited that candidate along with all others.

Insull, who was on the stand for an hour and who seemed to be somewhat bewildered at the end under the volley of questions fired at him by Chairman Reed, told the committee that any one to whom he made campaign gifts was at liberty to publish the fact and the amount.

At one point in his examination Senator Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin, Republican, halted him to make it a matter of record that the evidence disclosed total contributions by him of $237,925 as follows:

To Frank L. Smith, $125,000; to George E. Brennan, Democratic senatorial candidate, $15,000; to Charles V. Barrett, treasurer Crowe-Barrett organization of Cook county, $10,000; to Roy O. West, chairman of McKinley Cook county organization, $10,000; to Robert E. Crowe, $5,000; to Anti-World campaign, $32,925; and to county campaign, general, $40,000.

Insull said that all of these contributions were made in cash and that in instances, he borrowed the money to make the payments, receiving advances sometimes from his utilities companies. He asserted that virtually all of these advances had been refunded and that all would be.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken • Direct From Wires
By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Columbus — Seventy-five members attended the dinner given here Monday night in honor of George M. Stoughton, St. Paul, president of the National Restaurant association. The guests included Miss Grace Smith, of Toledo; and W. C. Kuster, Newark, directors of the Ohio State Restaurant association.

Cincinnati — Rev. David Judson Starr, for many years chaplain of the Ohio penitentiary and former chaplain of the Ohio house of representatives died at his home here Monday night. He was born and reared near Dayton and was graduated from the Miami university at Oxford, later graduating from the college of theology at Mt. Union.

Newark — George Mummy, 19, has confessed to the firing of a barn here last week in which two wagons and two horses were destroyed according to police. He is also charged with setting fire to three other barns in which five horses were burned to death.

New Philadelphia — Rev. J. Howard Deemer, for five years pastor of the Baptist church has resigned to accept the pastorage of the Tabernacle church, Chillicothe, Ohio.

Norwalk — Police Chief Douglas McKenzie, of Alpena, Michigan, will receive $500 reward from the Huron county commissioners for his aid in the capture of James and Leonard Lyon at Lachine, Michigan. The brothers were convicted of the murder of Frank McGrath, a railroad detective.

Washington — After the state rested its case against Leo Halterman charged with the murders of his half brother, Charles Halterman, and the latter's wife last December, the defense began taking testimony. According to Sam Satterfield, principal witness for the defense, Leo had been the subject of cruel treatment while intoxicated. Cleo Johnson, twin sister of the defendant testified her brother had been the victim of many physical mistreatments at the hands of the murdered man.

NICARAGUA UNDER THE FLAG OF AMERICA

The Stars and Stripes and the Strong Arm of the U. S. Her Protection.

Negotiations are in progress at Washington which may lead to establishment of a virtual United States protectorate over Nicaragua, present center of Civil war and U. S. Military occupation.

President Diaz has requested this government to enter into a type of alliance with Nicaragua, regularizing by treaty the kind of military protection now given his regime by the United States. A similar United States treaty with Panama was recently rejected by the Panama assembly.

Officials at Washington say they have no desire to violate Nicaraguan sovereignty. But President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg take the position that this government should not permit foreign or international jeopardy to its special interests there such as rights to naval bases and an Inter-oceanic canal.

Alleged Mexican leadership in an Anti-Yankee movement in central America, and Mexico's recognition of the liberal rebel Nicaraguan government after the United States recognized Diaz, are considered here a serious challenge to United States supremacy in the Caribbean.

Standardizing Utensils

Hope of German Woman
Berlin.—Asserting that the business of housekeeping, while employing the largest number of "hands" of any "industry," is the most disorganized in Germany, Dr. Marie-Elizabeth Lueders, feminist and democratic reichstag deputy, has started a campaign for the standardization of household utensils as the first step to greater efficiency and less drudgery in the home.

"There are seventy-two different coffee mills on the market," Doctor Lueders said by way of illustration. "Six machines would gratify every whim of housewives. If manufacturers concentrated on putting out just six mills, prices would fall and a better product would result."

Early Suffrage Parade

A woman suffrage demonstration was held in New York on October 23, 1915. The demonstration was one of protest, and an approximate estimate sets the number who paraded at 25,000.

EX-GOVERNOR JUDSON HARMON PASSES AWAY

At the Jewish Hospital Cincinnati Tuesday Aged 81 Years.

Judson Harmon, governor of Ohio from 1909 to 1913 and attorney general in Grover Cleveland's cabinet from 1895 to 1897, died Tuesday morning in the Jewish hospital at Cincinnati, aged 81 years. He underwent an operation for hernia a few days ago, but failed to rally.

JUDSON HARMON

JUDSON HARMON
Governor of Ohio 1909 to 1913

Judson Harmon was born at Newton, Hamilton county, Ohio, February 3, 1846. He was the son of a Baptist minister. He worked his way thru college, was admitted to the bar and during a portion of his early career was judge of the common pleas court of Hamilton county, and judge of the superior court of Cincinnati. He resigned the latter position in 1887, and became associated in the law practice with former Governor George Hoadley. He was elected the second time governor of the state at Dayton and his opponent was Warren G. Harding, who he defeated by over 100,000 votes, he carried with him the whole Democratic ticket. It was preeminently a personal triumph and as such is unapproached in Ohio history. Altho the larger pluralities of Governor Brough in 1863 and Governor Herrick in 1903 were much more of the party than of personal significance.

Monopoly on Emeralds Held by Soviet Russia

Moscow.—Russia now has practically a monopoly of the world's supply of emeralds, according to Manager Kasatkin of the government trust for export of Russian colored stones. An emerald mine in the Ural mountains, he said, one of the only two such mines in existence, has been put back in operation. It was owned by a French concern before the Russian revolution, he said and was flooded by its French owners when the Soviet officials came to confiscate it. Soviet workmen recently pumped it out.

Good Tips for Home Gardener

Judicious Use of Manure and Fertilizer Is of Much Importance.

As he prepares his seed-bed for planting, the wise home gardener bears in mind that nothing is more important in making every foot of the garden yield its best than the judicious use of manure and fertilizer, classed as "cool" manures, and although the plant food is not as readily available as in horse manure, it will give very good results. Poultry and sheep manure are dubbed "hot" manures, and should be applied very cautiously, especially on the root or fruit crops.

When fresh manure is used, it should be plowed under to a depth of six to eight inches and entirely covered with earth. On the other hand, if the manure is well-rotted, only half of it should be plowed under, and the other half broadcast and raked into the surface.

Commercial Fertilizers.

If you want the best all-around fertilizer, get what is generally known as either the 4-8-4 or the 3-8-3. The term "4-8-4" simply means that the fertilizer contains 4 per cent ammonia, 8 per cent of phosphoric acid and 4 per cent of potash. In all fertilizers, nitrogen is the first, phosphoric acid the second and potash the third number.

One pound to every 25 square feet of garden surface is the average application of commercial fertilizer. Half of this should be broadcast and raked into the surface ground and the other half applied under the row, or hill, as the case may be.

Either nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia is used to give a larger leaf growth on those vegetables which produce edible leaves, such as lettuce, endive and parsley. Small applications of about one teaspoonful scattered around each plant of tomatoes, cabbage, eggplants, etc., or side-dressed celery, will give a better growth in stalk and better colored leaves.

Where Lime Comes In.

Lime should never be used in direct contact with the manure, because it has a tendency to liberate the nitrogen faster than plants can use it. Practically all garden soils need lime, however, and would be benefited by about ten pounds for each 100 square feet. Any finely pulverized lime is satisfactory for this. The right time to apply it is after the manure has been plowed under. Broadcast and rake it into the surface soil.

Rats Carried From Town in Different Shipments

Many of the rats prevalent in agricultural and poultry-raising sections are carried from towns to farms in shipments of dairy and poultry feed, the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture has learned from surveys in these regions. This emphasizes the nation-wide need for concerted effort between the rural and urban people as a basis for the efficient control of rats. The problem calls for widespread co-ordination of effort and the utmost persistence in the application of repressive measures. United action by representatives of farmers' organizations and chambers of commerce or other civic organizations is urged by the bureau in all parts of the United States where rats occur.

Green Feeds Essential for Health of Poultry

During the last cold spells of the season many cases of leg weakness in hens that have been laying heavily are reported. These are usually traceable to the fact that the owner has run out of green food. Such foods contain what is technically known as vitamins. When they are exhausted from the bird's body she begins to suffer. If green feed is given the bird will soon recover. Cabbage, sprouted grains or even steamed alfalfa leaves are beneficial.—O. C. Krum, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Farm Hints

It's easy to haul lime in winter on a sled.

High priced protein feeds mean that we should grow more alfalfa and clover.

More than twenty million forest trees were planted in New York state during 1926.

It pays to pay cash for seeds and fertilizers. Get credit at a bank; they make that their business and they charge less too.

Vegetable protein such as is contained in cottonseed meal is best for cattle and sheep, while the animal protein of kankage is best for hogs.

A handy helper in burning roadsides and inside fence rows is a torch made by twisting a piece of baling wire around a gunny sack that has been rolled into a tight wad and soaked in used crank case oil. Such a torch when effectively applied makes the stubbornest trash burn clean.

MACK PARRETT

"It takes a heap of livin"

You hear a great deal about it---CO OPERATION.

Some think it is a panacea that will cure economic ills by merely rubbing it on the affected spot.

Really, co-operation is mental. It springs from the same source as neighborliness. It demands the subjugation of selfish interests to those of the common people to which we are but a part.

How useless would your upper jaw be without a lower jaw against which food could be chewed. If it weren't for harmonious co operation this universe would crash this world to pieces in short order. A bee can't run a hive---it takes a swarm, working together like trojans, TOGETHER to turn out honey.

The Circleville Chamber of Commerce invites you to join it, so that together with other men, we might work toward a common goal that may prove of mutual benefit.

It's true, there are folks who would rather bust the whole works than to lose their point---who must have their way even though it means the end of things. There are others who believe they have done their share when they join an organization.

But after all the object of co-operation---the object of the Chamber of Commerce isn't to be better than some other town or someone else---the object is to be better than yourself or better than our town. If you can stand up for your sincere beliefs, fight for improvement in the face of criticism, think in terms of tomorrow's hopes instead of yesterday's mistakes---Circleville needs you as a champion---the Chamber of Commerce needs you. Will you pledge yourself to this creed---NOW.

A GLIMPSE OF WASHINGTON.

A man often shows his true greatness by some very simple act of kindness. For example, you may get a glimpse of George Washington from a kindly little act, which, we may be sure, taught a corporal in the American army to know him better than ever.

Early one morning Washington went alone to see for himself what his soldiers were doing in a camp which he had ordered to be fortified. The weather was so cold that he wore a long overcoat with a great cape. The coat hid his uniform, and his hat and cape did not leave much of his face to be seen. For this reason the soldiers who saw him did not know that the tall man passing by was their great general.

At one point in his walk he came upon a few men who, under the command of a corporal, were building a breastwork of logs. The soldiers were bending over a very heavy log, and were just about to raise it to the top of the breastwork when General Washington came walking by. The corporal stood at one side giving orders. "Heave ho!" he cried. "All together! Up with it! Now!"

The men lifted with all their might, but they could not raise it quite high enough. The corporal shouted again, "Heave! Up with it! Up! Up!" but he did not put his hand to it himself. The men struggled and strained, but they had done their best, and the heavy log was about to sink back into their arms.

At this moment Washington ran to them and with his great strength gave the help they needed. The log was quickly lifted upon the breastwork and rolled into place. The grateful men thanked the stranger, but the corporal paid no attention to him. Then Washington turned to him and said in a stern voice, "Why don't you help your men with this heavy lifting?" "Why don't I?" said the man. "Don't you see that I am a corporal?" "Indeed!" replied Washington, as he unbuttoned his coat and showed his uniform. "Well, I am the commander-in-chief! The next time you have a log too heavy for your men to lift, send for me."

Then, turning upon his heel, he walked away. We may be sure that the corporal learned a lesson that many men need to learn, and that the soldiers came to know their great general better than they had ever known him before.

The above was written by a student in the schools of Cincinnati. His name is Irwin Miller, aged 10 years. He received first prize in an essay contest.

In Doubt

Timely Tips to Home Gardeners

For Greatest Success Keep Cultivating—Thinning Is Favored.

Thorough cultivation is one of the secrets of successful gardening. On a small scale this is best accomplished by use of a rake or hoe; when the plants are close together it may be necessary to use a hand scratcher, and for crops planted farther apart in rows the wheel hoe or shuffle hoe will give good results.

There are four good reasons why we cultivate. First, cultivation destroys the weeds which if allowed to grow consume moisture and plant food. Second, it produces a mulch and conserves soil moisture which will be needed, particularly during dry weather. Third, it is necessary to allow air to get into the soil in order to allow friendly bacteria to enter; and finally a clean, neat, cultivated garden presents a much better appearance than one which is full of weeds and is not cultivated.

Mulching Pays.

Straw, manure or lawn rakings placed around a plant will conserve moisture. This mulch is an aid in cutting down weeds, and preventing the ground from becoming hard. If either of these materials is available, it would be well worth while to use them in this manner.

Vegetables, like animals, need a certain amount of space for their best development. If they are planted too thickly they will not receive the proper amount of water or plant food, and will not do as well as if thinned to proper distances.

Seed of beets, radishes, turnips, parsnips, carrots, rutabagas, onions, etc., must be sown rather thickly because many of the seeds will not germinate. However, when the plants have attained the size of from 2 to 4 inches, pull out the small ones leaving only the larger and best plants every 2 or 3 inches in the row.

Proper Thinning Pays.

Proper thinning gives the plants a chance to grow large roots, enables the sunlight to get to the base of the plants and also allows room for a free circulation of air which will tend to ward off certain stem diseases. Instead of throwing away your thinned plants, replant them carefully in another part of the garden. They will grow and give very good results.

Road Building Increases in Middle West States

License fees and receipts from the gasoline tax are believed to have done more for road building and highway improvement in the past year than any other element, according to a survey made of fourteen middle west states' reports on the season's highway activities.

In the eleven states during the past year $350,000 passenger cars and trucks were licensed, and with this tremendous traffic bringing in revenue to the government, more than 9,000 miles of highway were either newly paved or improved. The cost of the 9,000 miles is around $94,000,000, covering the area of the states included in the survey. The taxes reported for this work totaled over $125,000,000.

Segregate Breeders

If a special breeding pen including the best male bird and a few choice hens is to be kept they should be isolated at once. If the hens used have been with other males no eggs should be saved until three weeks after isolation in order to make sure that the male heading the pen is the father of the chicks hatched. If the hens have not been with other males, the eggs will practically all be fertile after about a week. When the breeding season is over, discard the roosters.

FARM FACTS

Lack of fresh air will make work seem harder in winter or summer.

Litter on the poultry house floor should be clean and dry and from four to six inches deep.

Live poultry sometimes shrinks as much as 17 per cent in weight during the time it is in transit to market.

There is more profit and pleasure from one well-pruned and well-sprayed fruit tree than from ninety and nine neglected ones.

Numerous auctions will be held during the next few weeks and it is well to remember that cattle sell much better when it is known they have passed a clean tuberculosis test.

A slight improvement in his feeding methods made a difference of more than $46 in the monthly returns of an Illinois dairyman last fall. A change in the ration made the feed cost less, yet the cows produced more butterfat.

Most bankers are much more willing to lend money on favorable terms to the farmer who can furnish a clean-cut statement of his net worth than to the farmer who never takes an inventory and who never keeps records which are evidences of his business efficiency.

The Four Things That Matter.
There are four qualities we look for in a motor oil:
1. It must give perfect lubrication.
2. It must leave the engine in clean condition.
3. It must be economical to use.
4. It must be free from impurities that damage the engine.
On these four counts we have chosen Sinclair Opaline Motor Oils and recommend them to our customers.

CLEAR SIGNALS ARE NEGLECTED
Records of Many Motorists Marred by Preventable Accidents.
Too many motorists never achieve perfection in their driving, their records are marred by accidents of various kinds and their car operation and upkeep costs are high merely because they fail in the first fundamental of good driving—the necessity of giving clear, sharp signals of their intentions.
This opinion is expressed by Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, who suggests that every motorist might profit by taking an inventory of his driving practices.
None is immune.
"It seems that none is immune to this form of carelessness or thoughtlessness," says Mr. Hayes. "There are times when business or home cares or something of that nature press heavily upon everyone, and under such circumstances, one drives more or less like an automaton assuming, subconsciously, that the other man's mind is alert and that his keenness can compensate for our pre-occupation.
"Such an attitude isn't fair when one looks at it coldly. It actually is a form of 'back passing' that the average motorist would not be guilty of if he looked at it in the proper light.
Remove Mystery Element.
"Successful driving—that is, driving that is free from accidents of every variety, even the most minor—depends upon each driver removing the element of mystery from his every intention. Thousands of accidents are caused annually in all parts of the country because some driver fails to give a signal and another assuming that he knows the first man's purpose, guesses wrong.
"The American Automobile association, with which this club is affiliated, is continually active through its more than 800 local organizations in the interest of safer driving.
"It is a problem for each motorist, individually. Unless each makes it his business to improve his own driving by complying with the signal regulation, far-reaching results cannot be achieved."

Treat Visitors Nicely
The California State Automobile association is doing everything possible to make the visiting motorist's stay in California pleasant. The stranger is welcomed by a sign at the state line, invited to stop at the nearest association office, given a motor tourist map listing and describing scenic and historical points, provided with road information, a digest of the state's traffic laws, and receives the visitor's permit required by law.

Current Skips Across
Moisture or grease on the surface of the distributor housing will sometimes cause serious missing, because the high-tension current skips across the surface of this foreign matter instead of through its regular channels. The remedy is to wipe off the surface. The presence of moisture may be explained by the fact that it is drawn in with the air through the radiator, or may condense on the surface on a damp day.

Change Air in Tires
To keep balloon tires up to a certain pressure, rather than to vary them according to road and load conditions, is analogous to trying to run through the winter on a summer carburetor adjustment. Owing to the tendency to jiggle, a balloon tire should be inflated to its maximum limit when driving over smooth pavements. When traveling over rough roads the minimum limit of pressure should be adopted.

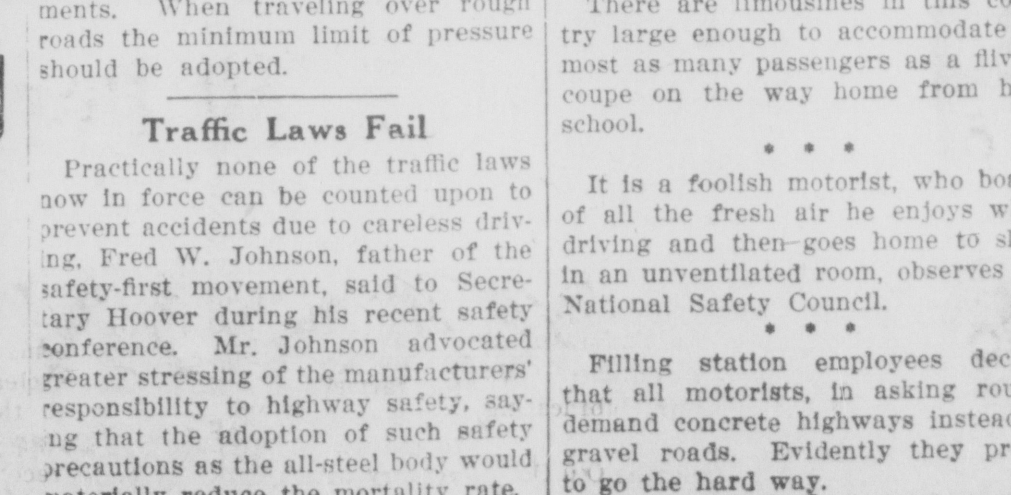

Traffic Laws Fail
Practically none of the traffic laws now in force can be counted upon to prevent accidents due to careless driving. Fred W. Johnson, father of the safety-first movement, said to Secretary Hoover during his recent safety conference. Mr. Johnson advocated greater stressing of the manufacturers' responsibility to highway safety, saying that the adoption of such safety precautions as the all-steel body would materially reduce the mortality rate.

Excusive Cooling
If the engine is subject to excessive cooling—as many new power plants are—efficiency is impossible since an engine runs best when just below the boiling point. Excessive cooling can be minimized through using a smaller hose connection inside the regular connection. This restricts water passage and slows down circulation. Never use emery cloth or sandpaper to clean the distributor points.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES
See that springs are greased occasionally.
Before starting, set spark lever about one-fourth up sector.
Experiments with grain dust prove that it will some day be used to run autos. Isn't that enough to make the horse laugh?
A racing car with power supplied by the pulling of levers by the riders recently attained high speed on a track in Munich.
There are limousines in this country large enough to accommodate almost as many passengers as a flivver coupe on the way home from high school.
It is a foolish motorist, who boasts of all the fresh air he enjoys while driving and then goes home to sleep in an unventilated room, observes the National Safety Council.
Filling station employees declare that all motorists, in asking routes, demand concrete highways instead of gravel roads. Evidently they prefer to go the hard way.

Ontario "Sells" Drivers on Value of Policeman
Now it is the traffic cop who is being advertised. Through the medium of the effectively printed word, the Ontario department of highways has undertaken to "sell" the traffic policeman as a friend of the motorist.
Wisely, it seems, the minister of highways points out in an advertisement that the traffic patrol "is not to inconvenience the motorist and not for the purpose of collecting fines. Its aim is to protect life and limb, and the public investment in the roads. Its work makes for the safety of yourself and your family."
Having addressed the motorist on the purpose of the traffic patrol, the highway official calls upon the car owner to co-operate with the officers. On this point the ad reads:
"Do not fall into the temptation of speeding because the road ahead is clear. Remember that excessive speed is one of the greatest agents of destruction of some roads."

Japanese Girl Athletes

Girls in Japan are from a very early age systematically instructed in physical exercise, with the result that at maturity they are almost as strong as the men. It is not an unusual sight to see a company of young girls, who are strolling along a country road, step back a few yards for headway, and then, following a leader, all nimbly clear a 5-foot fence by leaping over it.

Peculiar Glass Drop

Prince Rupert's drop is a kind of glass drop with a long tail, made by dropping melted glass into water, and remarkable for the property (due to internal strain) of bursting into fragments when the surface is scratched or the tail broken. It is so called from Prince Rupert, nephew of Charles I, who first brought the drops to England.

Will you say it just for the day or through the years to come?

NOW comes the time of year when the telltale stethoscope finds hearts more affluter, when pulses beat with ardency renewed.

And no wonder! For just in the offing is St. Valentine's, the day set apart by the Saint of Hearts for all true lovers . . . filial, fraternal and romantic . . . to play the roles of Romeo and Juliet, or of Darby and Joan.

In such a crisis, adolescent youth seeks an outlet for his welling emotion in a bit of lacy paper, a red heart or two, a sugary quatrain or sonnet.

But we elderly folk, of twenty and beyond, must find a more lasting and worthy expression of our sentiment.

There is no finer gift than an Elgin Watch. Featured in a wide style variety and sold at prices ranging from $15 to $1700.

Fortunately, that's not hard to do. For just 'round the corner is a jeweler, and he deals in valentines of four dimensions . . . Beauty, Utility, Permanence and Value.

Valentines wrought of gold and silver or set with a precious jewel . . . valentines not necessarily expensive yet enduring, to be admired and cherished through the years.

Tokens that link the lovely with the lasting, the precious with the practical . . . a ring . . . a pin . . . perhaps a silver vase . . . or best of all, an Elgin watch.

A gift that will serve the minutes and the hours, and survive the decades. A gift, indeed, that will "say it for a lifetime."

MURDERED HIS STEP-MOTHER AT HER REQUEST

Popular Bluffs, Mo., Feb. 19.—(UP.)—Precautions were taken for the safety of Marion Jackson, 35, and Earl Jackson, his son, following the startling confession of the youth he had brutally killed his step-mother with an ax last October.

His determined silence finally broken by three days and nights of grilling, young Jackson sobbingly told how he and his step-mother went hunting together and at her own request he struck her on the head several times with an ax, dug a shallow grave in a cotton field and buried her mangled body. Two hunting dogs uncovered the remains a few days ago and neighbors of the Jacksons who had been told she was in Memphis, demanded an investigation.

Both father and son are being held in jail and are heavily guarded. Feeling is tense.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Mrs. George Steely has issued invitations to an afternoon tea on Saturday, February 26, at her home in Pickaway township, for her friends to meet the bride of her son, Marvin G. Steely whose marriage to Miss Amelia Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright of near Kingston, was performed on Friday, February 18, at the Presbyterian Manse by Rev. E. S. Toensmier. The marriage was very quietly celebrated and after a short wedding trip the newly-weds will be at home to their friends at the beautiful country home of the groom's parents. Mr. and Mrs. George Steely will remove to this city shortly, but Mr. Steely will continue to assist his son with the management of the farm.

LOANS UP TO $500

One of our men brought in a magazine the other day and pointed out an article that seemed to him to fit City Loan policies. It stated that a furniture dealer's success depended upon whether he considered himself a "seller to" or "buyer for" his customers.

Perhaps a part of City Loan success is due to the fact that we consider ourselves "borrowers for" rather than "lenders to" our patrons.

The car was the property of T. A. Akey of Columbus, who with Mrs. Akey and two other relatives were enroute to Chillicothe. None of the occupants were seriously injured. Jumper Outfit in Favor at Resorts
Materials Include Ensemble Effects in Gay Checks and in Dots.

From this time until spring is well on the way the scene of activities in the world of fashion will be largely south of the Mason and Dixon line. The winter vacation becomes each year more general and is now a thing for which extensive preparations are made. Paris couturiers and American dressmakers, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, are keenly aware of the importance of the southern resort season, with its rivalries, and create for it their artistic best in styles. Palm Beach has become a label for dress of the type required for the southern winter season, but the playgrounds are many and the horizon of sunny lands is wide. There are all the resorts and clubs at all the semitropical inland places and waters, the mountains, springs, beaches and pine woods, to which the world of fashion travels, with proper equipment, which means a harvest time for designers and merchants.

Each of the fashionable winter resorts is a style center for which a definite type of dress is required. The most varied and elaborate wardrobe is, of course, for the seashore places. For these, one whose social activities are general selects costumes for many occasions—for morning, noon and night. There must be up-to-date clothes for the beach and the ballroom, for the tennis court and golf grounds and for the tea garden.

An entirely different outfit is needed for the country clubs at the springs and in the mountains. There are more sports clothes, for riding, hiking, golfing and for general wear, where the changes are less arduous. In the smartest communities evening dress is distinctly important and the latest things in gowns, wraps and accessories are worn for the dinners and dances.

Because of the prominence given to outdoor affairs, sports dress is particularly attractive, and the most swaggar sports clothes seen in years have been designed for this season. New fabrics, new colors and original combinations are the features most conspicuous, with a tendency to more femininity in style. This applies to all of the season's fashions and particularly to southern resort togs, which also forecast to some extent the styles for early spring.

The Traveling Costumes.
Whatever the destination, the first requirement of a journey southward is a traveling outfit. This year a definite type is evident in the traveling costume which will serve for many as a lining for the topcoat, a manner of handling that is both smart and serviceable.

Some of the newest materials, wool or wool and silk interwoven, are as light as pure silk or crepe, charming and graceful in ensembles and of infinite service for southern wear. There are, for example, the fine reps almost as thin and as closely woven as veiling, suitable for ensembles that will be worn going South and for early spring in the North. These are shown in plain colors—browns, blues, beiges and greens—which in the making are trimmed with brilliant dashes of color. Then there are the reversible checks, stripes, arrowheads, overpatterned, some of them showing the design in infinitesimal checks, refined.

Two-Tone Silk Dress for Morning or Afternoon Wear.

dainty and having an unmistakable quality of elegance. Some of the most attractive of these materials have a foundation of wool exceedingly fine, with the pattern traced in silk.

Taffeta de Laine.
Among the finer fabrics of this type is a taffeta de laine, light and delicate as thistle-down, closely woven, with a small block pattern outlined in silk. This material has something of the character of mohair and of slightly more weight than silk, but an especially happy choice for a climate of warm days and cool evenings in the open. It is slightly more elaborate than the heavier woollens and makes charming frocks and ensembles for the younger women. These featherweight woollens and others with one thread of silk are designed for the more feminine sports dress, such as a woman will wear for lunch or tea at a mountain or seaside and are particularly fetching in light and bright colors with white. With these jumper suits and with the smartly tailored and plaited skirts are worn blouses of new and quite lovely design. These are, of course, of silk or crepe in plain colors, worked up with minute pin tucks, and much fagoting and drawn work is being used. The best of these are done altogether by hand, although there are to be had many attractive blouses in which the exquisite styles are reproduced by machine.

In some original models received from Jenny and Jane Regny, a one-piece frock is really all in one, the bodice being joined to the skirt at a low waistline which is really about the hips. In each of these the bodice of white wool is trimmed in geometric pattern, done with the material of the skirt, which is black or colored satin crepe. In one from Jenny the skirt is of black satin plaited and the sleeves are made of this, with bands applied at wide spaced intervals around the bodice. In another from the same house pale green crepe is trimmed with bands of dark green cloth, which is plaited in with the material of the skirt and applied in curving bands at the neck, down one side of the blouse and as a fancy belt.

Combination of Fabrics.
Treatment by Jane Regny of two fabrics in combination is rather different and more striking; she uses very wide bands of contrasting colors and hold patterns. The colors of these frocks of Parisian authorship are of several styles. On one model the neck is cut round, with the usual encircling choker of beads. Another is slashed in a shallow V, as the edges are turned back to form coat-like revers. In another model the blouse is cut high and buttoned at one side, following the line with which the frock itself is finished. The high-cut neck, with a cravat tied at one side, is considered the ultra-smart manner of finishing the blouse, bodice or jumper in a sports or semi-sports frock.

Skirts are new in cut and in the handling of the fabric, wool or silk, of which they are made. A conspicuous detail in the design of plaited and gathered skirts in particular is the massing of the fullness in front.

Paris millinery in the present season, as it is translated into the mode for this country, is an almost trimless affair.

DEMOCRATS ABANDON TAX REDUCTION FIGHT
Garner Says There Is No Way To Prevent G. O. P. Applying Treasury Surplus.

Washington, Feb. 21.—House Democrats have abandoned their fight for tax reduction at this session of congress.

Representative Garner of Texas, minority spokesman in the house, on revenue questions, said today there apparently remained no parliamentary way of preventing Republicans from carrying out their plan to apply the treasury surplus to reduction of the public debt.

He declared the Democrats would attempt to bring about reductions desired when the house ways and means committee begins drafting a tax reduction bill in the fall for early introduction in the next congress.

knockabout occasions as the season goes on. The jumper two-piece—the suit which is in effect a two-piece, but in reality all one garment—and the one-piece part of an ensemble, the sort of frock that was introduced as the coat dress a few years ago, are all being worn. Ensemble is the term which describes the most fashionable and practical style in dress, and material is largely an individual matter. Crepe and silk are the preference for some who wear a heavier sort of outer wrap, but the lightweight woollens are having a tremendous vogue because of the particularly fine fitness of the new weaves.

Among the many fabrics shown in the latest costumes designed for travel and general wear are small birdseye checks and fine tweeds, reps, cashmeres and wool crepes. These are used for ensembles, for suits and for one-piece dresses in several arrangements and combinations of materials. Some conventional checks and dots in prints of two or three tones are introduced in the dress and for the lining of the coat. It is usual to carry the fabric of the dress over

Edith's Unusual Inheritance

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

WHEN Edith Martin's bachelor uncle died and bequeathed to her the nearly three thousand books of his library instead of a few thousands of his dollars, she sat down in a corner of her room and cried.

"What in the world can I do with three thousand books?" she asked herself, over and over again. "And added to my own five or six hundred volumes—dear, oh, dear!"

A relative who rather envied her the possession of so fine and varied a library, remarked, with apparent casualness, that it was a pity the books were to be in hands that could do so little with them.

Edith's eyes had flashed fire at the remark but, true to the self-discipline that she had acquired, she held her tongue. But—there were no more stupid, useless tears over her legacy.

It took time and effort to formulate her plans even after the inspiration she sought had come to her. The library was catalogued but in having it moved she found a great deal of material that she could not—and some that she would not—use for her new enterprise. Therefore, all books that she considered available had to be placed and arranged on the new shelves she had had built in the great, old-fashioned living room of her father's home. She had made it into a most attractive studio-library with her own desk tucked into an alcove and the windows subtly curtained with a fabric that made all light from out of doors seem like sunlight.

In these surroundings, Edith established a sort of library that she felt there was a need of in her community. She selected books for people who could not get out. She had a telephone and mail service to which she attended personally and with the assistance of schoolgirls she delivered books and called for them. The charge was nominal but the advantage of being a member of this library was that your books were selected for you with a personal understanding of your taste. Edith conducted a circulating library, also, on the usual plan, but the main feature of her work was the attention to those who could not get about to choose their own reading matter. She made arrangements with a publishing house to let her have books at cost and by letting them out ten or twelve times they soon more than paid for themselves.

Once a year she planned to have a rummage sale of much-used books and at this sale she arranged to give employment to two old maiden ladies to whom she had suggested a plan. They were to be present at the sale to offer to cover the old books for those who bought them, in any kind of cretonne that might tone in with their decorations. Altogether, Edith found herself suddenly very busy, very happy and very successful in her newly found work, and every night she was thankful that she had discovered a use for her legacy.

Warner Dickson dealt in rare books and he had made more than one visit to Edith's attractive library to try to buy some of her good volumes. She refused to sell her precious editions for, always, she had been a book-lover herself and now that she did not need to sell them, she would not. "Books have always meant so much to me," he was telling her one afternoon, at twilight, "that a romantic fancy has possessed me all through my life that one day I should find my greatest happiness through them—and their contacts."

"You knew my Uncle John?" she asked. Dickson nodded. "Yes. He had gathered his books about him from everywhere and often, because of his wealth, he was able to buy the very books I was trying to get. Needless to say—I envied him."

"And now," laughed Edith, "you are trying to get them away from me!" "Oh—only as a matter of business. I did not even know you the first time I called. Now, did I?" Edith continued to smile. "Who says you do now?" she asked lightly. The man was silent, a trifle hurt. He wondered if she suspected him of trying to get her books away from her by this more than friendly attitude, this frequent visiting?

"Miss Martin—" "Now—that's nice. It sounds like a perfectly proper school teacher or librarian."

He was annoyed. But he went on. "You have never asked me to come to see you, in a friendly way, and so, in order to be with you at all, I have to pretend a sustained interest, a vain hope, that by persistence I may get possession of those rare volumes."

"Oh—and if I should ask you to come to see me out of library hours, so to speak, you would still come?" she asked, naively.

"Try me," he retorted, boyishly. With so vivid a common interest, so broad a meeting ground and temperaments that seemed to be harmonious from the very beginning, it was not surprising that Warner Dickson and Edith soon discovered their love for each other.

And instead of being a detriment to the success of the library, their partnership only made it a greater institution for they worked together for the same common cause—that of spreading good literature into fields where it was almost inaccessible.

HUNTERS FAIL TO THIN OUT WILDCATS

Little Hope of Clearing Forest of Beasts.

Olympia, Wash.—Not in one hundred years will the cougar, or bobcat, be banished from the forests of the northwest states is the opinion of state and government predatory animal hunters.

Scores of these are killed in every section of the Northwest each year, yet every spring hills the depleted ranks with playful kittens, potential game and livestock destroyers. For a long time to come the cougar will continue to flourish in the rugged wooded parts, chiefly because that, catlike, it is the king of stalkers; dines on a great variety of meat, and can only be successfully hunted by the use of cleverly trained trailing dogs.

The destruction of cougars by paid hunters varies widely over the western states. In Whatcom county, Washington, last year, 129 were brought in for bounties; 135 were slain in Wasco county, Oregon, in 11 months, while provincial agents in British Columbia report the destruction of 1,087 the last 12 months.

In Mariel county, Oregon, Hathaven Jones, hunter and trapper, claims to have killed over 100 mountain lions in his time, while Lester Wagner of Skagit county, Washington, has skins to prove the destroying of 187 bobcats.

No matter what name the cougar is called in various parts of the West, it is the same animal, stealthily invading domestic herds or preying cunningly on deer, young elk, small animals or game birds. In Washington and Oregon the animal is called the cougar; California and New Mexico use the title mountain lion; Canada, the catamount; Colorado and Texas the puma; Montana and Idaho simply designate it as the wildcat.

By any name the animal is well named, living up to every reputation attached to it, plying its destructiveness and rearing a family secretly on the border of the agricultural and grazing country. Waste, hilly, forested land with piles of loosely cast-up rocks is the favorite hiding place of the pussy-footed prowler.

HARTMAN THEATER.

At the Hartman theater, Columbus, next Monday night and the balance of the week, Sam H. Harris will present his musical comedy riot The Marx Brothers in "The Cocoanuts." Heretofore thru the medium of "The Music Box Revue," Mr. Harris has given an elaborate entertainment of the traditional type, but this year he has a story of sufficient volume to be dignified by the name of plot, and then has added his dances, sketches and musical numbers, all of which are indigenous to the narrative. He has taken for his locale Florida during the present land boom and he has thru the fertile pen of George S. Kaufman a hilarious story to which Irving Berlin has added and lyrics and characteristic numbers. Here is entertainment that surpasses the "Revue," not excepting the "Music Box Revue" which "The Cocoanuts" has supplanted in Irving Berlin's affections. Once again we have beauty and art combined in the expert staging of a large working chorus, in the gorgeous ensembles costumed to fill the eye and to the varied talents of an unusually expert company of comedians, singers and dancers. To begin with there are the Marx Brothers, who made themselves such distinct favorites thru their long success "I'll Say She Is." Into a most up-to-date story of Florida and its land boom, the author has placed these comedians, suiting the picture and situation to their style of talents. Holding the story together has its own difficulties where the Marx Brothers are concerned. Nevertheless, the author has managed to give some continuity to his plot.

Prominent in the large cast are Phyllis Cleveland, Jack Barker, Janet Velie, The De Marcos, the Three Brox Sisters, Basil Ruysdeal, Margaret Du mont, Henry Whittemore, the Breen Brothers, the Paloma string orchestra a jazz band and the liveliest, peppiest chorus presented on the stage in many a day. All in all a costly production and the outstanding musical success of the past season on Broadway.

Special attention paid to out of town orders. Send them now. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

"The Store that Treats You Right."

BUT HE DIDN'T DO IT EVERY DAY!

George Washington once threw a dollar away for practice—but he didn't make a practice of it.

And on the birthday of the Father of our Country it seems a good time to say:

Me for the Methodists Men's Tenth Annual Supper where I get all I care to eat of the "Famous Groce Ham" and all the trimmings for 50c, Ice Cream and fine large slice of Home-Made cake 15c extra.

Then too I can listen to an organ recital while I wait, and enjoy the High School orchestra while I am eating.

I'll meet you there for they begin serving promptly at five p. m.
